

Capitol Connection Q&A for Contractors

Week of 2/26/2024

By Shauna Krause, President, Capitol Services, Inc.

The prevailing wind is hot and not for an HVAC contractor hoping to grow new work in NV. Reciprocal isn't the same as equivalent, yet there is an expert course to level the difference. The solution is a little more straight-forward to another contractor and, no pun intended, a final answer on bankruptcy...

Q: I've had a "C-20" (HVAC) license in California and one of my clients who has locations in Nevada wants me to do some work for them over there. He was telling me the licenses are reciprocal so I shouldn't have to take any exams. I thought I would check with you first to make sure that's accurate before I dive in. Can you tell me if getting licensed over there is as easy as he makes it sound?

A: There is a limited reciprocal agreement between CA and NV. The classification system in Nevada is not equivalent to California's and therefore the licenses are not automatically recognized as reciprocal. California's "C-20" license for example is equivalent to Nevada's "C-21B" license, which is a sub-category of their full "C-21" license. There is no reciprocity for the sub-category classifications. In order to qualify for a waiver of the "C-21" Trade exam in Nevada, you would have had to have passed both the CA "C-20" and the "C-4" (Boilers) exams, and held those licenses actively for the previous four years. So to answer your question, no, obtaining a license in Nevada is not as easy as you were told. We can help with the process though so give me a call if you decide to move forward!

Q: Can I have two Sole Proprietorship licenses, each with different business names? I have multiple classifications and I want to start promoting and advertising for specific trades and have the business name line up with that particular trade.

A: Yes you can! You are on the right track as most of the time I get licensees wanting to operate with multiple business names under the same license number, which is not permitted. As long as you do as you described, and obtain separate licenses with the separate business names, you are good to go!

Q: I had a contractor's license for my corporation which expired a couple of years ago. I filed for personal bankruptcy last year. I would like to get my license back, but have it just as a personal/Sole Owner license. Will the bankruptcy affect my ability to get licensed again?

A: A bankruptcy, in and of itself, does not prevent you from being able to get licensed. There is a question on the new license application asking whether you have failed to resolve any outstanding final liabilities, which includes taxes, penalties, interest, and any fees assessed by the CSLB, the DIR, EDD, FTB, and BOE. If you have to answer 'yes' to this question, the CSLB requires that you provide an explanation and indicate a payment plan or whatever the case may be, but as long as you can answer 'no', you should be fine with moving forward.

While knowledge is power, knowing where to go for the answers is half the battle. ## INTRODUCTION

There are a number of reasons why power lines may be downed, including: wildfires, inclement weather, vegetation falling on wires, poles being struck by vehicles or equipment, etc. Downed power lines should be treated with extreme caution as people who are driving, working, or walking by them could potentially be exposed to electric shock or electrocution.

POTENTIAL HAZARDS OF DOWNED POWER LINES

Step Potential – The step voltage between the feet of a person standing near an energized grounded object.

Touch Potential – The voltage between an energized object and the feet or hand of a person who is in contact with the object.

WHAT TO DO IF YOU ARE IN A VEHICLE NEAR DOWNED POWER LINES

There are two scenarios that drivers may encounter while driving where they could be exposed to downed power lines.

Seeing a Downed Power Line While Driving

When a person is driving, and they see downed power lines, they should do the following:

- Stop the vehicle and call 9-1-1 or the local electric company.
- Stay in the vehicle.
- Do NOT attempt to move the power line.
- Do NOT drive over the power line.
- Always assume that downed power lines are energized.
- Give the dispatcher all the information you can about the area where the downed power line is and other immediate hazards (sparks, smoke, flames, etc.) that you see.
  - If possible, give the dispatcher the pole number to help identify the pole that needs to be de-energized.
- If you see pedestrians, roll down your window and warn them about the danger while waiting for emergency services to arrive.

DOWNED POWER LINES SAFETY

The Vehicle is Making Contact with a Downed Power Line

When a vehicle has made contact with a downed power line, the driver should do the following:

- Remain calm.
- Stay in the vehicle and call 9-1-1.
- Give as much information as possible about your location to the dispatcher.
- Wait until you have been informed that the lines have been de-energized to leave the vehicle.

If the driver has to leave the vehicle due to an immediate threat, they should do the following:

- Open the vehicle door all the way.
- Put both feet on the ledge of the door.
- Keep your feet together as you jump.
- Ensure that your feet stay together when you land.
- Shuffle or hop 30 or more feet away from the area.
- Do NOT attempt to walk, as this could result in step potential.
- Do NOT make contact with the vehicle.

DOWNED POWER LINES IN RESIDENTIAL AND WORK AREAS

If a driver or pedestrian comes across a downed power line in a residential or work area, they should do the following:

- Keep a distance of 30 feet or more from the downed power line.
- Do NOT attempt to move the power line.
- Always assume that downed power lines are energized.
- Call 9-1-1 or the local electric company and give the dispatcher as much information as you can about the area and any immediate hazards that may be present.
- Warn others about the lines and keep them away from the power lines.
- Do NOT step in any water that may be around the power line.
- Avoid touching any objects that may be in contact with the line (metal, fencing, dirty or wet wood, etc.)

CONCLUSION

Downed power lines should be treated with extreme caution. Drivers and pedestrians should never attempt to touch downed power lines. When downed power lines are spotted, drivers and pedestrians should keep their distance and call either 9-1-1 or the local electric company to have the downed lines de-energized and repaired.
